Your columnist's article on the constitution is an insult to Canadians intelligence & the American people.

She has the audacity to compare this thing ^{we have} ~~passed~~ with the great American constitution. She talks about how naive were the ^{poor stupid} ~~Americans~~ who passed theirs. They had fought desperately a war to get it & many died. They then carefully elected an assembly of still some of the recognized finest minds ^{even} on this continent to study & design one & then the American people with dedication asked it in. In contrast, not a Canadian voter heard a whisper about ours ^{at the} last time we went to the polls. We already had for 114 years an ^{amendable} constitution & for 22 years an amendable Bill of rights that had given Canada good government & prosperity. After their ^{safe} election the liberals sneaked in their surprise document, unseen unwanted by the average Canadian voter.

~~By~~ Drawn by politicians to increase their own power & forced onto the Canadian citizen without even their consent by vote. Before the constitution was introduced by ~~one man~~ ~~the~~ ~~latter~~ Dufferin had after painful efforts voted to stay in Canada the constitution has already driven out 1/3 of Canadians not only that when the rest of Canada heard about it. ~~There were~~ in the only manner they could and left to them having been deceived at the federal election. The Canadian voter has indicated his lack of support for this political only constitution. At two provincial by elections premiers who were fighting the constitution were returned to power after he had signed a third provincial premier was defeated by his voters. In the two by-elections in Ontario & Quebec the liberals were hurled out after their phoney constitution was revealed & in the only other way they could protest in the Gallup polls the people have turned against Trudeau. This constitution unlike the American has never had the Canadian people's support & for good reason is not a constitution at all it's only a constitution for politicians to increase their power over the poor elector.
